Survey of Research and Operational Support in the Field of International Trade and Finance as They Relate to the Soviet Bloc

1. Basis for Enumeration of Personnel

The survey should count every full-time analyst (excluding those whose principal duties are administrative) who will have worked (on a cumulative rather than consecutive basis) more than half of calendar year 1953 in the field of international trade and finance, delineated as follows:

The field of international trade and finance should be considered as covering the international economic relations (1) between Soviet Bloc and non-Bloc countries, and (2) between the countries of the Soviet Bloc, and as including (but not necessarily being limited to) inquiry into the following problems:

- a. Commodity Trade - terms, direction, composition, turnover and financing (including transportation costs).
- b. Agreements (governmental and non-governmental) - trade, payments, barter, and commercial agreements.
- c. International Finance - all aspects of gold, currency, foreign exchange, foreign assets, and balance of payments.
- d. Commercial Policy - restrictions on imports, exports, financing, and transactions.
- e. Foreign Trading and Financial Organizations - identification, structure, methods, objectives, and personalities.

2. Basis for Classification of Personnel as to Type of Activity

Personnel in this field should be classified as to whether they are primarily engaged in one of the two following general categories:

- a. Operational Support - activities in support of the day-to-day administration of US policies and programs such as the Battle Act, the Export Control Act, and NSC Policy Determination No. 152/2.
- b. Research - produced for the specific purpose of use in the formulation of national policy.

3. Basis for Delineation of Activities as to Functions

Estimates of man-year equivalents for each of the five functional areas outlined in paragraph 1 above, should be made for each organizational unit (down to branch level) that includes personnel coming within the scope of the above enumeration.
